12-5-1929

HSTC Rooter, December 05, 1929

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.humboldt.edu/studentnewspaper

Recommended Citation
Please refer to the Special Collections research guide for examples of how to cite newspapers.

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the University Archives at Digital Commons @ Humboldt State University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Humboldt State University Student Newspaper by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Humboldt State University. For more information, please contact kyle.morgan@humboldt.edu.
FRESHMAN ACE AIT CHALLENGE

The Freshman girls accepted the upperclass girls’ challenge to a hockey game which will be played off sixth period Thursday. It was stated in the last issue of the Booster that the J per class girls have been training before breakfast. This will give the Freshmen a lot of competition although rumors have it that the Freshman don’t need any practice.

Jimmie Spiering little boy,
Of the women had no fear.
Once his tried to make a date,
Bad to say he got the gate.

BASEBALL GIRLS SCORE HIT

The Pathe news reel of the Humboldt State Co-ed’s baseball team, shown at the State theatre last week was pretty good. A general exodus from all parts east towards Humboldt can be expected soon. Young stalwarts with visions of baseball and young Rom•e•o•a with visions of certain feminine baseball players will be hitting the pike in the the direction of the “most western college.” However, a counter migration from Humboldt towards Hollywood is to be feared. Nearly every student at Humboldt can be said to have successfully broken into the talkies, for sure our H.U. kerchou being heard in theatres all over the United States. Has did splendid work down in front.

Coach Laura Herron’s speech ought to put Humboldt on the map. She did well despite distractions of the nose powdering ceremonies. It’s to be regretted that they didn’t show Billy Huber in action on the mound; but can’t this Dulaney girl swing a mean bat?

Literati will hold its regular meeting tonight at 7:30 in the Social Unit. Mildred Moe is in charge of the program. The one-act play, “The Bishop’s Candlesticks” will be presented. Kas and Hazel will give an original tap dance.

BASKETBALL SEASON STARTS!!!

Now that football is over it is time for basketball. There are plenty of huskies in this school who have a good knowledge of basketball.” Our football team did well let’s get up a basketball team that is just as good or better, and keep up the standards already set by the football boys.
A. nd the sea in the calm at twilight
lay hushed in its quiet deep
with neither ship nor white-cap
To disturb its dreamless sleep.

V.L.D.

As our friend, the Chemistry and Physics instructor has it, college should not be regarded merely as a preparation for what is to come later; the years we spend in college should be just as much a part of our lives as other time. The person who gets nothing from college but book learning is missing just as much as the person who goes to college with the sole idea of having a so-called "good time." The undergraduate who gets his studies and yet enjoys the full the extra-curricular activities of his school is the one who gets the most out of college. To teach a person how to live is as important a function of college as to teach him science or classics.

Mr. Rube Goldberg says college spirit is the bunk—perhaps it is for gotty old grads. But in our opinion undergraduate college spirit means more than breaking one's neck on the gridiron for dear old Pudunk; it has a much wider connotation. As Dr. Sweetman explained, the word Aloha typifies the spirit of the Hawaiians. In the same way the thing called college spirit is the noblesse oblige attitude of the undergraduate for his college.

Voice from upper floor: Smatter down there—have you no key?
Leo Sullivan: Gotta key all right, but wouldn't mind throwin' down some keyholes.

THE SEA AT TWILIGHT.

I sat by my window one evening
And looked out over the sea.
A vast carpet of deep rich blue
Is what it seemed to be.

So calm and deep; it lay there
As if in a quiet sleep.
And the white-sails furled theiroam
Into the boundless deep.

The sun had just gone from the heavens,
But a few rays lingered on
To entice the beautiful ocean
As it slept in infinite calm.

And my heart found rest and contentment
As I watched the endless blue.
And the sun from behind the horizon
Gathered its last golden hue,

And the sea in the calm at twilight
Lay hushed in its quiet deep
With neither ship nor white-cap
To disturb its dreamless sleep.

V.L.D.

Suppressed desires of our faculty members—as they are; think they are; or would like to be—
Dr. Dorothy——-Nae Murray
Mark B.——-Harry Sennett
Sankey——-Merna Loy
Leo, Sr.——-Nila Astor
Sally——-Louise Fazenda
Maurice B.——-Ben Turpin
Floradora——-Nancy Carroll
Claire O——-Buddy Rogers
Imogene P——-Clara Bow
Fernando C——-Maurice Chevalier
Annie Marie Q——-Alice White
Robert P——-Emil Jannings
Tilly——-Lou Cheaney
Betty——-Gloria Swanson
Harry Mac——-Doug Fairbanks
Laura H——-Greta Garbo
Homer A——-John Gilbert
Ralph S——-Farina

There was a young lady called P.J.
Who had a crush on dear T.J.,
It soon fell through;
He had nothing on,
To offer, and little to say!
Throughout the history of our race, men have sought to establish peace, realizing that only in times of peace is the greatest prosperity and happiness possible. In recent times the desire has become world-wide in its scope. To-day as never before men are striving for the realization of world peace. Yet it must be admitted that the progress registered remains small.

One of the important means of preventing war is diplomacy. This method failed utterly to prevent the World War, when treaties were regarded as "scraps of paper" yet the League of Nations has prevented much unnecessary bloodshed. The Kellogg treaty is said to have prevented definite outbreaks of war between Russia and China.

Some maintain that present economic conditions will prevent war, that the interdependence of nations will prevent them from fighting against each other because of the economic loss involved. Yet most of our great wars have been caused by economic rivalries.

Perhaps one of the most important causes of ill-feeling between nations is modern Jingoism. Many of the lower types of newspapers indulge in this practice. The doctrine of "100% Americanism" and "my country right or wrong" must be abolished if we are to have mutual understanding between nations. We must begin at the bottom and stop telling our children that America is "the greatest nation in the world." Can there be international understanding when we ridicule the institutions of Europe, and still foster Anti-German feeling?

But even understanding is useless if there be no love. Does the love of our fellow man recognize international boundaries? When Christ said, "Love thy neighbor as thyself," did he mean only the people in our own country? We say that we are fighting "for love of country" but can true love engender hate? Even in a war for principles of justice, which is the only justifiable war, we should be tolerant to our enemies, for tolerance is the essence of love, and love is the manifestation of God.

--R.H.--
If Laura were a Duck instead of a Haron.
If Louise were Wrong instead of Wright.
If Vada were a Corridor instead of a Hall.
If Vera were Pop instead of Malm.
If Dick were a Sombrero instead of a Derby.
If Luise Wouldn’t instead of Wood.
If Alva Louise were a Why instead of a Hose.
If Edythe were Short instead of Long.
If Marjorie were Summer instead of Winter.
If Ethel were sour instead of Sweet.
If Everett were Black instead of Brown.
If Gene were a Carpenter instead of a Smith.
If Ronald were a Maerschaum instead of a Cob.
If Bettie were a Nightingale instead of a Martin.
If Violet were an Iceberg instead of a Sunberg.
If Leno were a Hammer instead of a Moll.
If Alyce were Scaley instead of Finne.
If Beva would Listen instead of Look.
If Kelvin were a Highball instead of a Toddy.
If Mary were a Teamster instead of a Carter.
If Linda were a Chair-car instead of a Carter.
If Lilian would Pin it instead of Tackett.
If Ed were Yes instead of No.
If T.J., were Big instead of Little.
If C. Edward were Tombs instead of Graves.
If Grace were Sea-green instead of Palmgren.
If Val, were a Dale instead of a Lee.
If Sethar was Silly instead of Sally.
If Helen were William instead of Thomas.
If Juvia were a Waterworker instead of a Fourker.
If Aubrey were Tungsten instead of Boydstun.
If Lydia were Pinkham instead of Lovejoy.
If Flora were a Creeper instead of a Walker.
If Dave were a Sexton instead of an Exton.
If Rudolf were Kas instead of Kaslo.
If Inez were a Butcher instead of a Taylor. --Anon.--

BOOK REVIEW

Literature is indeed a wonderful thing, especially when it enables us to travel into the wilds of Africa within an hour. Just start reading "Lion" by Martin Johnson, and you will begin your African adventure which, in this case, is with the King of Beasts. The book becomes doubly interesting when you know that all the photographs shown were taken by Mr. Johnson himself, who was accompanied by his wife on this nationally known expedition, also the pictures are copyrighted by the American Museum of Natural History.

Did you know that the Lion is king of all he surveys? All Simba has to do to get himself a square meal is to stalk through the grass until he is within a few yards of an unsuspecting animal and pounce upon his back.

The following is one of the many interesting sections of "Lion."

"We followed the herds over the plains until they had largely melted away. We couldn't bring ourselves to leave first. Many sights that we have seen in Africa still impress us as being unique, but for drama, for power, for sustained excitement, no other experience that we have ever had approached those hectic days that we spent on the fringes and in the heart of the ten million zebras and wild beasts that made up the great migration of 1928."

-A.F.-

ANOTHER ROMANCE??

The Rooter's reporter had been in conference after school. Yes, even the shadows were fast falling as he left the room. He glanced out into the court with a listless curiosity. Suddenly he came to life, and grabbed his notebook. New, with a capital N! There stood Dr. Penny with a masculine arm around her. The arm was attached to a Prominent Student Body Member. A most lonely scene indeed.

The Reporter waited a while longer, finally catching the Prominent Student Body Member as he was going home. After a few judicious compliments, the PSBM loosened up and began to talk. Yes, he was teaching gadzooks to three feminine teachers. But he had his troubles too. Mrs. Big kept her eye on her instructor instead of on the ball. Miss Stepper was a problem. "She's left-handed, you know." Radiant smiles. "But I'm getting along swell."
The Rooter and the Rooster

How did Burr meet his death?

The rumor that he ate a piece of apple pie in the Commons one hour before he was found dead, was proved without foundation when Miss Jackson declared firmly that the story was a malicious falsehood, for nothing heavier than Nabisco wafers had been served that day.

Miss Button, the librarian, suggested that Kathryn Fairest might be guilty as she took out all of the mystery stories in the library. However, her chum, More-rain-at-she-well, swore that Kathryn was writing notes to her in curriculum about a certain Swede, at the time of the murder.

R. Slick, the detective, remarked, "We all know that Frances Ebert had strings on him. Maybe she pulled them."

"No", retorted Attorney T. B. Fiddle, "He probably died of apoplexy."

Whereupon the coroner made the astounding statement that some chemical action must have taken place for he had found that Burr's blood was red whereas it was well-known locally that nought but the purest blue blood flowed in his veins.

Who could be the slayer? The chemical change in Burr's blood showed conclusively that his death was not from natural causes.

A lurking dread settled over the college as the menacing fact was re-emphasized that the murderer was still undetected and might even be amongst its midst.

[cont'd next week]

**************

Classified Ad Column

WANTED: One filmy veil and books on natural dancing.

--Dave Ezro--

FOUND: Twenty minutes in which to do three hours studying.

--H. W. K.--

WANTED: Someone to help me coach the girls' hockey team.

--Jim Spiering--

LOST: My reputation as a woman hater.

--Art Bryant--

FOUND: An unusually large tack in the seat of my trousers.

--Clyde Ratenaude--