Calls for 2011 CSU
Biotechnology
Symposium Award
Nominations are now open.
Deadline
is MONDAY, OCTOBER 11

CSUPERB is pleased to invite nominations for the five different CSU Biotechnology Symposium Award programs: Nagel, Eden, Pauling, Andreoli, and Faculty Research. For more information about each program, its nomination process and past awardee lists, click on the program links at <http://www.calstate.edu/csuperb/awards/>. Award recipients will be announced and recognized at the 2011 CSU Biotechnology Symposium (January 7-8, 2011, at the Hyatt Regency Orange County)!

CSUPERB awards recognize outstanding achievements and contributions made by CSU faculty members and students in biotechnology-related research and education. CSUPERB defines biotechnology quite broadly and welcomes nominations from CSU faculty and students in all disciplines related to the current practice of biotechnology, including but not limited to life sciences, physical sciences, clinical sciences, math, computer science, agricultural science, engineering, and/or business.

We are certain that all CSU campuses have outstanding biotechnology faculty and students who deserve system-wide recognition and appreciation. Please take the time to nominate deserving students and colleagues this fall.

If you have any questions about the nomination processes, please contact me or Rajni Garg (rgarg@mail.sdsu.edu; 619-594-1877)
