Baseball Pictures In Arcata Theatre

College students are invited to attend the free baseball show at the Arcata Theatre this afternoon at three o'clock. The movie is under the auspices of the National League and it depicts "A Century of Baseball."

The first part of the picture shows the history of baseball and its progress. The latter part of the picture will be devoted to methods of pitching and hitting. The films are shown through the courtesy of the San Francisco Chronicle and the Arcata theatre.

Bill Sherf, Elaine Johnson, and Don Goff spent the weekend at their homes in Weott.

Personality Change May Be Dangerous

Astrologists, personality experts and so-called psychologists, who offer to "change your personality" overnight are likely to do more harm than good, in the opinion of Dr. Frank C. Davis, assistant professor of psychology on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

Tinkering with the personality by self-styled experts is not only valueless, but it may be dangerous to mental tranquility," Dr. Davis declared. "Altering the personality is a slow process at best, and it should be undertaken only by those who understand the complexity of the mental and physical characteristics which we lump under the term 'personality.'"

While neither the genes of heredity, nor the glands, nor the environment offers the sole solution of individual differences, Dr. Davis thinks that each one plays a part, perhaps along with other factors yet undiscovered, in shaping personality.

Because the question of personality is so complex, and because there is such general misunderstanding of the factors which produce personality differences, most of the widely-advertised 'personality-changing' is nothing more than a lucrative racket," Dr. Davis declared.

Junior class will hold a picnic on May 19 at Camp Bauer in the afternoon and evening. The general chairman is Snooky Edsall. Students will motor out leaving the campus during the noon hour.

THIS COLLEGE WORLD

When it comes to describing the college man of 1938, so many and varied are the paragraphic portrayals that he is at once a mastermind and a dolt, a playboy and a great student. None has so brilliantly painted the picture, says the Wisconsin Daily Cardinal, as Kent State University's dean R. E. Manchester, who sets the man-of-the-campus on his pedestal in the following manner:

"The college man is a living paradox. Most people cannot understand him and those who do come to their conclusions by indirect proof. He talks of the future but worships the past. He is liberal in his conversation but conservative in his action. He is radical in his opinions on politics, but elects stand-patters to the class offices. He demands freedom of thinking but defends with all his strength the traditions of his institutions. He takes wild stands on religious theories yet attends colleges and universities that are created and maintained by orthodox creeds.

"He preaches democracy yet supports the most rigid campus caste system. He demands that his university maintain the highest athletic standards, yet in the same breath demands a professional football team. He scoffs at his profs, yet defends them strenuously when they are criticized. He rebels against rules but sets up more rigid ones when given the opportunity. He hazes the high-school graduate who comes with a Boy Scout badge on his coat, but he covers his own vests with medals and keys. He invents and uses the most outlandish slang on the street, but reads and writes pure English in his room. He clamors for self-government, but doesn't want it after he gets it. He laughs at convention but insists upon it. He cuts classes the day before a vacation but comes back three days early.

"You ask, 'What are we going to do about it?' We are going to praise the Lord that we have him and that he is just what he is, a walking contradiction of himself."

College Librarian In Radio Address Gives Technique of Picture Taking

According to C. E. Graves, Humboldt College librarian and photographer, photography naturally falls in three main divisions: the taking of the picture, the developing of the film and the making of the prints. In a radio address over KIEM last week, Mr. Graves said that the taking of the picture is to most people the all-absorbing thing in photography.

"The first step in taking a picture is the selection of the subject," he said. "The first bit of advice that I would offer to a beginner is that he should be sure of his purpose in taking a picture and what he is going to do with it after it is finished. The most common fault of beginners is that they go around snapping away at almost anything that looks picturesque or interesting, with the result that a considerable part of their work—and that means both time and money—is wasted.

"I think that a beginner should select his subject carefully, be sure that the lighting is good, and then ask himself: I'll take a good look at it, bore a few of my friends by asking them to look at it and then forget about it permanently," then he should force himself to pass on something more worthwhile.

"Next in importance is lighting. In ordinary black and white photography, the light source should always be at one side, never directly behind the photographer. Some photographers prefer to have the light source in front, at an angle of sixty degrees or more. In fact, excellent pictures with more or less of a silhouette effect can be made with the sun directly in front of the camera but with the lens protected by a tree or some object. Some of my best pictures have been obtained in that way.

The reason for front or side lighting is that in that case the shadows offer more contrast, thus making a more pleasing picture. With back lighting, especially in the middle of the day, the shadows all point away from the photographer and tend to disappear, giving a flat a uninteresting effect.

"I should say that the next step is that of composing the picture. By changing his position only slightly, perhaps not more than a few inches, the photographer may obtain an entirely different composition. Many photographers spend an hour or more in deciding on the exact position of the camera for the taking of one picture. In any case, several different positions should be tried before being satisfied with the composition.

"Of the essential points of good composition, most important is to have one primary center of interest toward which the attention is naturally drawn by lines or masses or attitudes of people in the picture. If, for instance, you are photographing a beautiful waterfall with your friend in the foreground, have him look toward the waterfall, not toward the camera. This center of interest should not be in the mathematical center of the picture but should be slightly above or below, or to one side. Another rule of good composition is that the horizon line should never be in the middle of the picture but preferably about two thirds of the way from the bottom or the top.

"The beginner doesn't have to worry as much about how long an exposure to give or how wide a diaphragm opening to use as he did formerly, because most of the film that is sold at the present time allows for small mistakes in exposure—and so correct exposure is a much simpler matter than formerly. Absolute accuracy can only be obtained by the use of exposure meters, which are rather expensive, but the ordinary beginner will not need to bother with one of these. Exposure tables that will answer the purpose well enough are usually sent out with the different makes of camera. The most important fact for the beginner to know is that the smaller the diaphragm opening and consequently the longer the exposure, the clearer and sharper the detail will be the resulting picture."

SAN FRANCISCO ANTI-SWING

According to the result of a recent poll at the University of California it was found that San Francisco is a "ghost town" as far as swing is concerned. It was further revealed that the only real swing band that ever had an engagement at a San Francisco hotel lasted only two weeks.

College All-Stars Lose Contest 10-3

The Humboldt State All-Stars composed mostly of college students lost an exciting game with the Eureka Merchants last Sunday at Albee Stadium by the score of 10-3.

The large score gives no indication of the game, as the Merchants scored five runs in the first inning but were held in hand by the offerings of Lanky Bill Faust, college chucker. The college All-Stars were victims of hard luck and some poor umpiring. Nine college players were stranded on the baselines as their mates failed to hit or hit directly to opposing players.

The All-Stars will play a game this Sunday with the Arcata-Samoa combine in the Arcata ball orchard.

The line-up for the All-Stars will probably be Ellis, 3b; Meneweather, 2b; McGrath, c; O'Donnell, cf; Flink, 1b; Farber, lf; Speiers ss; Tonini, rf; Faust, p.

State Men Seeking Net Team Places

The six highest players in the ladder tournament at present are Wallace Lozensky, La Verne Elmore, Jim Cady, Billy Lee, Frank Sanderson, and Curt Wilson.

Others playing in the ladder tournament are Milt Chetkovich, Willard Woodcock, Jack Davis, Erie Hill, and Don Malone.

Surprise followed surprise recently at Golden Gate International Exposition for 13-year old Virginia Knowles (in top group with C. A. The little girl from Pocatello, Idaho, found herself checked in as the millionth visitor at the elaborate Ford Building since fair opening Feb. 18. She was feted by officials and presented with numerous gifts. At left, she is shown in a rolling chair accompanied by her 15-year old sister Lorna and flanked by Dean Lippi and C. W. CAMPUS COMMENTATOR

"Hello," and "how are you people?" is our greeting for the week.

With the spring drama season about over and a choir trip on tap, followed by the Steamboat Shuffle, your Commentator will be plenty busy.

Really, yours truly just cannot see why "Leading Athlete and Kisser", Franny Givens, stopped at twenty gals in twenty-eight minutes. Did he or the women play out?

Cab Cabalzar and Ada Regli are becoming real "love-birds" of the old school. They are always walking arm in arm, and Cab carries her books. Yes, a true follower of the "book and slate days."

Bill Sherf is rapidly making up for lost time. (During the last six months he's been practically hibernating from the women) One day Bill is with Rosie Ivancich and the next day with Jean Burton. — (Bill used to be chief lover at South Fork Hi School as well as the well dressed man).

My, but doesn't Walf Oglesby look chic these days? Winter is over!

Lolly Scholl had a very contented smile on her face when Givens smacked her for Kiss Number 3. What an embrace!

This is picnic weather, to be on picnics. My! My! a reporter fears to tell the Commentator that a certain bunch enjoys picnics, but your Commentator knows. Dear! dear!

"Hello," and "how are you people?" is our greeting for the week. The elfs, fairies, and brownies of the Mythical Tales always scamper about in the forests during the early spring. But far be it from fairies and elfs; many H. S. C. students also frolic about Joy Gastman seems to be herding the women around in that new car. Joy was seen with Pat Roche and then again with Elizabeth Wilson. Later he was seen with a car lord of "fems".

Hoping that this week's gossip has pleased you and that everyone is fit as a fiddle and ready to swing around the May Pole, your Commentator says, "Thank you for reading."

Myron Schussman Elected To School

Myron Schussman, Humboldt State senior, has been elected to a position in the Del Paso Heights school near Sacramento for next year. He will begin his work September 1.

This is a nine-teacher school. Schussman will teach the fifth grade and in addition will direct the school band and orchestra. He will complete his work at Humboldt this June when he will receive an A. B. degree and the elementary and junior high school teaching credentials.

Another Humboldt State graduate, Oden Hansen, has charge of the sixth grade at this same school.

Government Work Offers Men Future

"A young man will never grow rich on government salaries but can expect better pay in the lower ranks than is offered by business," according to Dr. Charles J. Rohr, assistant professor of political economy at Massachusetts State College.

Dr. Rohr said: "The salaries paid by the government compare very favorably with salaries paid by the private company. Generally speaking, the government worker is paid more in the lower brackets than the private worker and less in the higher brackets."

"You won't get rich in the public service," he added. "There are not many positions with salaries of more than $10,000 a year." Professor Rohr pointed out that "politics is being made more and more attractive for the trained young man, especially the college graduate. Uncle Sam is putting up signs reading 'No Amateurs Wanted' nowadays and systems of promotion, retirement, etc. are being improved from year to year to attract young men who have proper qualifications."

"The public official of the future," he predicted, "won't be the baby-kissing political henchman. He will be a college graduate and an expert in public administration, and at least he'll have read and studied the constitution of his state and federal governments."

N. U. Coeds Writing Poetry To Order

Poetry written to order is helping to pay the expenses of two Northwestern University coeds who have set up shop under the firm name of "Delightful Ditties, Unincorporated."

For a quarter they will furnish four lines of verse suited to any occasion. The slogan of the company is "We do the work; you get the credit; we get the cash." Personalized birthday, anniversary, and place cards, thank you notes, and party invitations form the bulk of their business.

A sample of the work of "Delightful Ditties, Unincorporated" is the following, written for a boy whose girl friend was having a birthday:

English expressions are hard and cold,
They lack finesse, they're much too bold;
So I resort to "parlez-vous" —
"Je t'aime," my darling — I love you.

The company offers a reduction for quantity, but has steadfastly refused to attempt free verse.

L. A. FINEST

Joe Smith had drowned in the "Los Angeles River," and a policeman was sent to his home to break the news to his wife.

"Don't scare her to death," his superior officer warned.

So the officer wended his way to the Smith house and knocked on the door. When Mrs. Smith answered the summons the officer spoke:

"Is this where Widow Smith lives?"

"I am Mrs. Smith," said the lady, "but I'm not a widow."

And the officer said simply: "What will you bet?"

"ISMS" OF 1939

Herb Vent's definitions of the "isms" of 1939:

SOCIALISM: If you own two cows you give one of them to your neighbor.

COMMUNISM: You give both cows to the government and the government gives you back some of the milk.

FASCISM: You keep the cows but give the milk to the government, which sells some of it back to you.

NEW DEALISM: You shoot one cow and milk the other and then pour the milk down the sink.

UNFIT

Fellow college graduates met after many years. Joe asked Bill to have a drink, but he replied he didn't drink. Later Joe offered his friend a cigarette but the friend said he didn't smoke anymore. Somewhat in disgust Joe said, "Do you eat hay?"

With a puzzled look Bill replied, "No, I don't eat hay."

"Well then," snapped Joe, "you aren't fit company for man or beast."

Francisco, south to Mexico, as well as tour the United States or Europe. One particular rolling Youth Hostel trip which is to be taken this summer includes a trip across country in a train, and then by bicycle, horse, or foot for the real journeys to the hostels, where accommodations for overnight may be secured.

Hostelers must travel the real journey by foot or bicycle. The trips are led by competent leaders. Julius Hooven used the Youth Hostels while on his bicycle tour of Europe.

Membership in the American Youth Hostels organizations costs one dollar for people under twenty-one, and two dollars for people over twenty-one. This pass admits the hosteler to over 4,000 youth hostels in 20 countries at a cost not exceeding 25 cents for overnight, or a corresponding amount in foreign currency. The pass includes also a year's subscription to the "AYH Knapsack," which is issued quarterly.

The youth hostel customs are based on consideration for othering for the day's trek, and self-service. There is no drinking, and in most countries there is no smoking, in the youth hostels.

For further information students may consult the "AYH Knapsack," or the "AYH Handbook" in the library.

Texas Coeds Learn Care of Children

Teaching University of Texas "co-eds" to be mothers that is the primary function of the Nursery School sponsored by the home economics department, Miss Lucile Emerson, director, stated.

The "co-eds," in actual home environment, take turns observing and supervising the children's play, help make out the menus, watch during the nurse's daily visit, perhaps design and make a child's wardrobe, devise programs to "niu in the bud" any maladjustment on the part of a particular child.

The University Nursery School each year enrolls twenty, 2 to 5, year old children in the home "child laboratory."

"We are not teaching them to be nursery school teachers, but to be mothers," Miss Emerson said. "Records show that most graduates of the home economics department teach or follow some career for not more than three years—then they marry and begin to raise their own families."

Don't Seek Safety, Professor Advises

Dean John F. Cunningham of the college of agriculture at Ohio State University, recently suggested that not too much emphasis be placed on safety and security in life, since "the fact—that nobody is entirely safe in the world into which you are going—may be what makes the journey so interesting and so stimulating." Among the "fundamentals for success" which Dean Cunningham advanced were:

"Do not be timid about competition, for it is the great stimulus to progress."

"Social living requires that we all contribute something that will be useful to the group. Otherwise, one is but a leech or a parasite, traveling under steam provided by someone else."
