Yo estoy agradecida por tener la vida que tengo. Growing up, I never really saw my parents struggle, as compared to my brothers. My mom didn't really suffer like my dad did. When my dad was a little kid, he didn't really have much. He would always tell me, he would make toys out of sticks, mud, and bottle caps to make a car or some sort of toy. He started working at a very young age to provide for his family. He was the only man in the house and had to step it up, for his sisters and mother. I never really paid close attention to this. He always has a smile no matter how hard life was for him. That's the thing about my dad. He's a very hard-working man and I look up to that. This taught me to always have a positive mindset. No matter how hard life gets for you, always keep pushing, and good things will happen to you, it's just a matter of time.
