"TAKE YOUR CRUSH TO CRUSH"

Featuring Jason Valentin, Humboldt
State Alumni & Owner of Crush in Arcata

Written by: Jesi Hamilton

I had the pleasure of sitting down with Jason Valentin, Humboldt State Alumni and owner of Crush, a well-respected wine bar in Arcata. Graduating with a film degree, he moved to the bay area in order to expand his interest in wine distribution and professional acting. He made his return to the beloved town we all know as Arcata to open Crush because staying local was always in his plan. Jason kept a film project approach in mind when starting up his business because it revolved around setting goals. He admits that becoming an entrepreneur isn't everything it appears because one must have passion and drive in order to make it all worthwhile. His journey couldn't have been possible without the love and support of his family and friends. His wife, Alison, also a Humboldt State alumni, has played a huge role in the business's growth and is known as Crush's Graphic Designer. Her creativity in their advertising brings their vision to life not only in the logo for Crush but in all their printed materials. Clientele range from college freshman to those retired, all looking for good food, wine and a relaxing environment. Crush has gained a presence on Yelp and attracts many travelers passing through the area with an affinity for wine. Many ask what is on the horizon for the future of Crush. The only plan is a greater focus on international wines. Crush has grown drastically since opening and continues to gain recognition in the community and beyond.

15 TO FINISH!

Take at least 15 units per semester to graduate in 4 years

Did you know?

Taking 15 units per semester puts you on track to graduate in four years.

The longer you stay in school, the more money it costs!

Graduate On Time

Taking 15 units per semester saves you money:
12 units costs the same as taking 15, so it's like getting three units for FREE, every semester!

Many students think that taking 12 units a semester puts them on track to graduate in four years, but it doesn't!

12 units per semester = 5+ yrs to graduate
15 units per semester = 4 yrs to graduate

Governor Jerry Brown created the "California Promise" to help encourage incoming freshmen to graduate on time. Check it out at:

Reactionary Artifacts by Sculpture Artist and HSU Alumnus Bryan Yerian

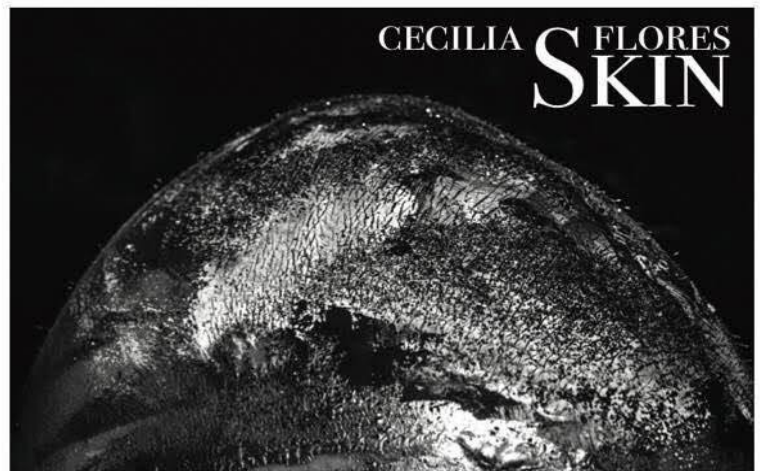

February 16 - March 23

Reese Bullen Gallery

Artist Lecture February 16 @5:00pm

Art Department Building Room 102

Yerian's sculptures contain amorphous shapes, colorful patterns and contrasting textures that intertwine with familiar elements such as a piece of wood, a balloon or a skull. Using clay as his primary medium, his work emerges as a response to his life experiences and memories. His sculptures guide viewers through a journey of vulnerability and comfort, mortality and safety, reality and illusion.

Journalism Professor Vicky Sama invites interested colleagues to visit her War Reporting class this semester. Her class is examining media coverage of war zones around the world and by using Skype, talking to journalists who are either on site or who were on location covering those conflicts. This class gives students the opportunity to speak directly with journalists who cover war and conflict. Prof. Sama has contacts from her long time as a CNN producer, many of them are still friends who appreciate that she is teaching the next generation of journalists about the world.

Third Street Gallery Presents Tender Forever By Megan May & Marval A Rex

January 31 – March 5

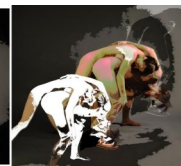

Megan May and Marval A Rex, recent alumni of Humboldt State University, created Just Kids: Tender Forever, which portrays the nuanced nature of their relationship within the journey of Rex's recent gender transition. The exhibit highlights their vulnerability, love, and evolution as a couple, offering an intimate insight of their life together. The series addresses issues such as the intersectionality imposed within relationships, transness, the condition of being transgender, and further addresses the oppression, which the dominant culture (often unwittingly) levies against the queer community. May and Rex present an unconditional love thriving in the face of adversity.

"Migrant Farmworkers and Our Food System: Inequalities, Health, and What's Gone Wrong"

Thursday, February 16
5:30pm-7:00pm Founders Hall 118

Seth M. Holmes is Associate Professor in Medical Anthropology and Public Health at UC Berkeley and attending physician at Highland Hospital in Oakland. He is Chair of Medical Anthropology, Co-Director of the MDP/PhD Track in Medical Anthropology coordinated between UCSF and UC Berkeley, and Co-Chair of the Berkeley Center for Social Medicine. His research focuses on social hierarchies, health, health care and the naturalization and normalization of difference and inequality in the context of US-Mexico immigration and our transnational food system. For this research, he spent one year and half full-time migrating with Triqui native Mexican farmworkers, living in labor camps and picking strawberries in Washington and Oregon, living in a slum apartment and pruning vineyards in California, living in a village in the mountains of southern Mexico while harvesting and planting corn, and crossing the border desert on foot into Arizona. The book from this work, Fresh Fruit, Broken Bodies (UC Press 2013), received the New Millennium Book Award from the Society for Medical Anthropology, the Society for the Anthropology of Work Book Award, the Association for Humanist Sociology Book Award, and the James M. Blaut Award from the Cultural and Political Ecology Specialty Group of the Association of American Geographers.
