Global Humboldt Project

Last academic year, a number of departments expressed an initial interest in contributing to the development of Global Humboldt, a new place-based first-year learning experience. Some of those who expressed interest have recently been contacted by either Alison Holmes or Matthew Derrick, who have been selected as 2017-18 Faculty Leadership Fellows to continue the work conducted last year by Julia Alderson and Joice Chang. If your department has not been contacted in the past few weeks yet remains interested in this opportunity, please contact Alison Holmes or Matthew Derrick.

Academic & Career Advising at the MultiCultural Center!

The MCC is excited to welcome Kyle Leitzke, an Academic Advisor from the Academic & Career Advising Center (ACAC).

Kyle will hold Drop-In advising hours from 2-4pm on October 25 and December 6

Kyle can assist with:

- Degree requirements, GE choices, major exploration, adding a minor, job and internship search strategies, resume review, preparing for grad school, and much more!

Kyle Leitzke Academic Advisor
kyle.leitzke@humboldt.edu

I am excited, and honored, to work with the MultiCultural Center as a drop-in advisor because I admire the programs, events, and spirit of advocacy for justice and equity that come from the MCC and its students. As an advisor I focus on utilizing my training, education, and experiences to help students develop personally, academically, and professionally. Another part is helping students identify their own identities, interests, values, skills, and goals. From that I work to guide students toward academic and career paths that are fulfilling for them. Guidance can come from things like understanding university policies or requirements, to finding majors, clubs, activities, jobs, and/or careers. If I can help empower MCC students in any way that would bring me great joy. In order to do this I strive to offer a comfortable space for students to express themselves and explore ways to make their HSU experience the best it can be.

Sarah Wald

"A Universal Killer? Rachel Carson's Silent Spring and the United Farm Workers' Pesticide Campaign"

Thursday, November 10
5:30pm-7:00pm Art B 102

Sarah Wald is Assistant Professor of Environmental Studies and English at the University of Oregon and the author of The Nature of California: Race, Citizenship, and Farming since the Dust Bowl. Wald, an interdisciplinary scholar of US literature and culture, holds a PhD in American Studies from Brown University. She focuses on the relationship between race and the environment with a particular interest in comparative approaches to Asian American and Latina/o Studies. She has published articles in Food, Culture, and Society, Western American Literature, and Dialogo. Her scholarship has appeared in Service Learning and Literary Studies in English, Asian American Literature and the Environment, American Studies, Ecocriticism, and Citizenship: Thinking and Acting in the Local and Global Commons, and The Grapes of Wrath: A Reconsideration.

The history of the United Farm Workers is entangled with the rise of mid-century environmentalism. This talk considers the complex ideological relationship between mainstream environmentalism and the farmworkers movement in the 1960s and 1970s, paying particular attention to the environmentalist perceptions of the UFW, the UFW's pesticide campaigns, and Rachel Carson's Silent Spring.

Sponsored by: Science & Energy Research Center and the Environment & Community Matters Program.

LOREN CANNON

To present at American Philosophy
Association meeting

Cannon's essay "HB2 and SB1070: Legislating Injustice" has been accepted for presentation by the Society for LGBTQ Philosophy. He will present during the Central Division meeting of the American Philosophy Association in March 2017 in Kansas City, MO.

The Society for LGBTQ Philosophy seeks to promote dialogue on any and all philosophical issues affecting LGBTQ populations. They also aim to promote the work of philosophers from underrepresented groups in the profession, and the work of graduate students, junior faculty, and underemployed scholars in philosophy working on LGBTQ issues.

Spring 2017 Course Highlights!

Your friends in the College of Arts, Humanities, and Social Sciences would like to highlight courses being offered during the spring 2017 semester that might be of particular interest to students across disciplines.

COMM 480 - Environmental Justice Communication

The course will investigate the public discourse associated with both The Environmental Justice Movement and the Indigenous Populations Movement. MW 9:00-10:50 am

ENGL 342 - Special Topics in Shakespeare

The course will focus on the representation and performance of the body on the early modern stage, specifically the gendered, sexed, racialized and aged body. TR 9:00-10:50 am

FILM 465 Violence & Desire, From Hollywood to Bollywood

This seminar examines the complexities of violence and desire as stylized, constructed, and imprinted through works of Mainstream and World Cinema. Together we will discover how this unique examination of film opens up dimensions of society we do not normally see, from those of race, gender, class, and identity. MW 3:00-4:50

HIST 180 - Imperialism to Decolonization

This new lower-division GE Area D course examines the history of colonialism from its earliest days until its demise. It traces policies and practices in the colonial encounter, focusing on race, gender, nationalism, and decolonization. T/TH 9:00-10:20 am

JMC 450 - Media Management

No prereq! This course involves making a business plan, researching artists, revenue streams, labor needs, competitive risks, as well as providing the tools in order to plan the launch of a media company. TR 3:00-4:20 pm

Various Music Ensembles

Non-majors who sing or play an instrument are welcome to participate in Music Department Ensembles - choirs, band, orchestra, jazz ensembles, Calypso Band, etc. We have groups for students at various levels of skill and experience, so there's a place for almost every student in the program. See MUS 106, 107, or 150 in the course catalog. Most Ensembles also provide one unit of Area C GE credit, and they can be repeated each semester, so students can earn up to 6 units worth of GE credit making music.

NAS 392 - Indigenous Identities in Film

Examines historical/contemporary constructions of Indigenous identities in film. W 5:00-7:50 pm

RS 340 - Zen, Dharma, Dao

Explores Confucianism, Daoism, Shinto, and major forms of Buddhism in China and Japan, individually and in relation to one another. Attention to mysticism, devotion, philosophy, scripture, ritual, gender, nature, and the politics of power. MW 5:00-6:20

SOC 480 - Policing Bodies: Race & Riots

From Vagrancy Laws in the 1860s to the Rockefeller Drug Laws in the 1970s and recent anti-immigration laws, this course examines the social and political contexts associated with legislation designed to police and control bodies. (CJS knowledge Area: Law; SOC Knowledge Area: Inequalities and Change) TR 3:00-4:50 pm

TA 307 - Theatre of the Oppressed

Explore the collection of techniques and exercises aimed at using theatre as a tool for political and social activism." (DCG-D, GE). MW 3:00-4:50 pm

See the Spring 2017 Class Schedule for locations and instructor information.
